SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD

By W. W. WHITAKER
When he feels like it.

(Mrs. L. E. (Dorothy) Stevenson, substitute)

Since I am temporarily substituting for Daddy this week, I will do what he would do. That is, write about my recent plane trip home, my impressions of my new home state, California, and how Grenada looks and seems to me after living somewhere else.

Having been slaving over a hot stove instead of a hot typewriter and having been changing diapers instead of forms on the old press the past year, my writing ability is as rusty as Shirley's old stroller which Laura Leif is using now.

When May phoned Steve that Daddy needed me, we had just moved to Oroville, a gold mining and fruit tree locality north of Sacremento. We had been there five days but I hadn't finished unpacking yet. Of course I had had time to unpack, but had been spending my time mainly trying to understand the kitchen appliances, the strange oven which wouldn't warm up and hot refrigerator.

We were busy getting ready to leave Tuesday. I don't know why I used that plural pronoun "we" as it was Steve who was busy. He saw to getting the plane reservations and then he packed for me and little Laura Leif. (I never learned to pack. Mother used to do it for me and no wthat's Steve's job.)

Steve drove us, in a heavy downpour of rain, to the Marysville Airport about 30 miles from Oroville. It was cold when we got to Oakland Calif., abotu 40 degrees and little Laura needed the overalls, sweater snowsuit and cap which she had on (by the time we got to Grenada, she was down to her diapers and complaining about the hot pins.)

We had a three hour wait in the Oakland Airport and I was forced to a conclusion about the Airline folk. The ones on the groun aren't nearly as polite and friendly as the ones in the air. It was in the airport waiting room that Laura Leif (aged 14 months) picked up a teenaged soldier from Vicksburg who was enroute home from Korea. He said she was just like his little baby sister and proceded to baby sit her all the way to Dallas, Texas, taking time out from his nursing duties only long enough to flirt with the pretty stewardess and to lend a polite Army chaplain a pocketbook entitled "Honeymoon Jokes."

When I was growing up, flying was considered an adventure and I have never got used to considering it just another prosaic means of transportation. Only by saying the 91st Psalm about 91 times was I able to get away from being scared. I never did understand what keeps those heavy planes up in the air.

Brother Andrew met us in Memphis. He is no slouch at the wheel and we were in Grenada very soon.

I was glad to find Daddy at home and glad to note him getting stronger as his appetite returns. He's eating like a field hand and his blood pressure's coming down. Daddy says to tell the readers: "I'm down, but not out."

Grenada friends have flooded Mr Whitaker with enough beautiful flowers to start a floral company and, as he says, "enough cakes, ice cream and cookies to feed the Baptist Sunday School picnic."

I wa svery touched to see how popular Mr. Whitaker was. Among the many nice things to happen to him during his illness were the following:

He appreciated a visit from Dr. Bob Clanton who is making a successful effort to recover.

His thanks go to Mrs. Roberta Dubard Allen for lovely pink carnations and her good wishes. The Dubards and Whitakers have been friends a long time. Last week Lewis Dubard Jr. came to the hospital to see us.

Milton and Patty Percival brought granson, John, for a visit. Mrs. Ed Holcomb brought pansies; Mrs. Frances Kent, luscious cake.

Grover Long and his good wife sent some pretty flowers by Minnie. And Misses Mildred and Margaret Pate came by to inquire. Also "Preacher" Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. McCluskey and Mrs. Talbert Yeager of Memphis sent get well cards. Neighbor Mrs.

Picketer Fined; Operator Convicted; Others Dismissed

Mrs. Mell Lamar, striking Southern Bell Telephone Co. employee, was convicted in City Court Tuesday of disturbing the peace and was fined $10 by City Judge W. O. Semmes. An appeal bond was made and an appeal will be taken to Grenada County Circuit Court.

It was specifically charged that she "called in a loud, rude offensive voice and created a tumultous and unnecessary disturbance at the Telephone Exchange on April 13."

Following Mrs. Lamar's conviction, Mrs. Lavonne McCord was tried and after testimony she was found not guilty and discharged. Then the City of Grenada dismissed the charges against the other three defendants.

The defendants were charged with yelling in a rude way at the women who were working in spite of the strike. The disturbance occurred at 9 p. m. April 13.

Also on trial was Bonny H. Hood, charged with violation of Grenada's recently enacted anti-picketing ordinance. When the case was presented the defendant offered no defense and was thus adjudged guilty and fined $25. He appealed and his bond was set at $100.

This Hood case was believed to be a deliberate test of the constitutionality of Grenada's anti-picketing ordinance and patently, he invited arrest.

Harald Rotler is to be in New York on business Friday and Saturday.

Hon. Ross Barnett Announces For Governor

Jackson - April 25 - Stressing [illegible] plans to develop human resources and to process and utilize Mississippi raw products for greater prosperity Ross Barnett, native Leake County [illegible] Jackson, [illegible] announced [illegible]

"As a candidate for Governor [illegible] your vote and influence [illegible] entitled to know what I believe in what my attitude is and what I propose to do toward the problems of our day and what I propose to do if elected.

"In making this my formal announcement, I acknowledge my indebtedness to you for your courtesies throughout the years and particularly for the wonderful vote you gave me in 1951 primary.

"It is with true humility that I have entered this campaign for the highest office within your gift, realizing fully that if elected your Governor my success will depend largely upon the blessing of Almighty God and the support and confidence of the people of this great State.

"As you know, all of my life I have represented the average men and women of this State and I promise you if elected Governor the average man and woman will receive a fair and square deal in this State. I will treat all citizens fairly and my constant concern will be the welfare of the average man.

"I promise you a sound and economical financial policy to insure that every dollar spent will receive full value and no money will be spent for any purpose not required by the needs of the citizens of this State.

"Mississippi has different problems in various sections of the State, however, in this brief statement to you I will mention only a few which affect all of the people of this State.

AGRICULTURE: If elected Governor, I would recommend a policy of agricultural development which would more profitably utilize all of our land, improve production and marketing methods, develop additional farm markets, where needed, and support existing farm agencies in their search and in their practical programs to increase production on a per unit basis.

INDUSTRY: "I will support an industrial program for processing our raw products at home, which are produced in the forms of cotton, crude oil, cattle, timber and other commodities, and are now being sold out of our state at their lowest market values.

"I favor maintaining, improving and expanding our B.A.W.I. program for the purpose of bringing new industry into the state and establishing a sound financial policy that will make our state more attractive to industry.

"Not only do I believe that we should encourage large manufacturing plants to locate in Mississippi, but we should be particularly attentive to the needs for small processing plants which would utilize the raw products of a particular commodity within its own area.

FORESTRY: "As Governor, I will support a practical and constructive policy of development in our forests, and will encourage small independent land owners to put into timber production millions of idle acres to furnish raw materials for this major

What Soil And Water Conservation Means To Me and My Family

Dear Brother:

I often think of the changes that have been made in farming methods since you left the farm many years ago. Of course this revolution could never have come about without motor powered machinery, such as bulldozers tractors, graders, etc., which we did not have in your boyhood. Now with our two and four row plows, cotton choppers, cotton pickers, etc., one man can accomplish a lot of work.

I think of all the improvements the soil and water conservation program has meant the most to us; we have participated in it since it's organization.

Remember when if the stock wanted water they just had to go and get it if there was any in walking distance? Water conservation has changed that. With the four stock ponds we have constructed we are storing up [illegible] gin that we need for [illegible] for our cattle next summer. Soil and water service engineers survey the ponds and give advice as to the proper method of maintenance. The part the women and children like best about the ponds is the swimming and fishing. The local soil conservation service obtains fish to stock the ponds, large mouth bass and blue gill are used, and in a few months they make good fishing.

We have an eleven acre lake, or pond which has been stocked several years and the fish are real nice. We keep a boat on it in the summer. The smaller ponds are stocked with fish and we plan to construct another pond this summer. That will make water convenient for the cattle no matter what pasture they are grazing in.

So much for water conservation. I want to tell you something about soil conservation. You know this Soil Conservation District was organized by local farmers and technical assistance is furnished through the district without cost to the farmers.

We had a map of our farm several years old with each pasture, field, fence, road, ditch, etc., located on it But as improved practices were carried o tuthe map became obsolete and this year the Soil Conservation Service has made a complete new map. Each field on the farm is drawn, such as the States on the map of the USA; each plot is numbered and marked for size, type of soil, crops adapted to it, what has already been done and recommendations as to what to do in the future. To me the drainage ditches are very interesting. I find that they should never be more than a foot deep and never too high to clip over. Of course keeping pastures clipped is one of the Soil Conservation practices. They have different types of ditches to meet the needs of locations. They even have a plan for planting winter cover crops and rotating grazing.

The temperature was down to as low as ten a while back, but I could look across the pasture and it still looked green.

In looking over the work sheet I see that each field for row crop is alid out with all information as to what has been done and recommendations as to what to do in 1955. Even advice as to when to plant, how to plant, how many seed per acre will be required and how to fertilize.

So you see that the farm plans are already made before the actual work begins. I believe that the people who are on the farm now are there because they love the soil, and the pure joy in seeing things grow, as well as the financial compensation. And the good part is any farmer in the county is eligible for soil conservation benefits without cost to him.

I hope that this does not make you want to go back to the farm now, yo have been an office man too long There is still plenty of hard work to farming, but I do not think you would have left the farm if conditions had been as they are now.

Love, Sister.

HOME AGENT NOTES
(By Bervil Elder)

Did you ever stop to think about the huge amounts of food you buy to feed your family? The average adult, you know, eats about three-quarters of a ton of food a year. If you are average size you eat your weight in food about every 6 or 8 weeks, or about seven times a year.

All homemakers would like to spend less for food for their families and have a few extra dollars to satisfy desires other than appetite, wouldn't they?

But how you ask? How can I cut food costs and still serve enjoyable and health-giving meals to my family?

Those who have tried it say the secret lies in careful planning of meals before shopping, in following recommended buying practices in doing correct cooking methods and in taking heed in storage of groceries.

Planning menus ahead so that you can make out a shopping list to take to the store with you helps to prevent impulse buying. So many times you will admit, you are attracted to food in the store because of its looks, the display methods used or maybe just because you are hungry at the moment and it looks good.

But when you get home you often find you have bought too much, have spent more than you could afford, or

A strong, sturdy framework is the same to a house as a sound bone structure to the human body. It is the best insurance for a long and healthy life. Your interests demand that correctly manufactured and well seasoned materials are used for this vital structure. Southern Pine has long been noted as a superior framing lumber. Its greater strength, its durability, plus the careful attention devoted to its manufacture, recommends its use for the frame and other parts of the house. Southern Pine, of the same high quality as that shown above today is available to home builders everywhere, a product of member mills of the Mississippi Pine Manufacturers Association.

From the low-cost of operating gas air-conditioning at the store, I know I'll save at least 1/3 my usual operating cost . . . not to mention the longer life and lower maintenance of gas!"

FOR NEW OR OLD CONSTRUCTION . . . KEEPS EVERY ROOM COOL

There's a space-saving gas air-conditioner sized to suit your home, store or office. One compact, central unit will cool every room in summer—warm every corner in winter—with the famous low-cost of gas. You can depend on gas in any weather . . . You can depend on gas equipment for long, trouble-free service.

When we search for knowledge, look for truth or seek entertainment, we turn to books. By collecting the works of the world's greatest writers, the libraries of our state are preserving the past . . . molding the future.

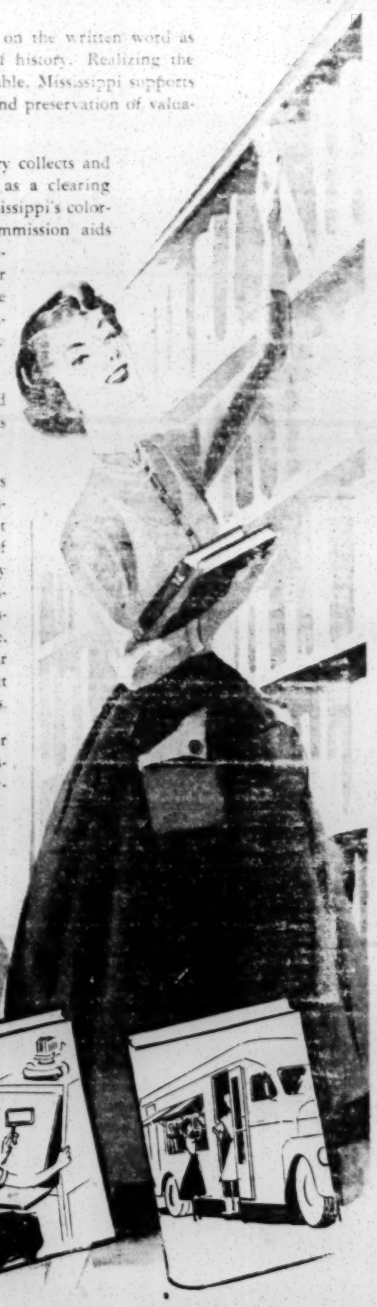
Since time began, man has depended on the written word as a source of knowledge and as a record of history. Realizing the importance of making such writings available, Mississippi supports three agencies dedicated to the collection and preservation of valuable books and documents.

The Department of Archives and History collects and cares for official state papers and serves as a clearing house for information on all phases of Mississippi's colorful history. The Mississippi Library Commission aids communities in the development of libraries and maintains a circulating library for the use of people throughout the state. The Mississippi State Law Library compiles important references for Mississippi legislative and judicial officials.

Combined, these three vital tax-supported agencies cost the taxpayers of the state less than $150,000 a year.

In 1954, a total of $6,371,358 (or 23 cents of each dollar of revenue received by Mississippi Power & Light Company) was set aside to pay the Company's tax bill. Of this amount, $2,731,258 is for state, county and municipal taxes to be paid in Mississippi. Therefore, it can be seen that Mississippi Power & Light Company's state, county and municipal taxes for one year could completely support these important departments for more than eighteen years.

As a tax-paying citizen, Mississippi Power & Light Company proudly salutes Mississippi's libraries and librarians for their service to the people of the state.



The Mississippi State Law Library, under the direction of Mrs. Julia Baylis Starnes, offers a source of ready reference to state officials.

Micro-copies of valuable documents and books makes research faster and easier at the Department of Archives and History.

The new $9,000 Bookmobile of the Mississippi Library Commission enables this state agency to supplement the smaller libraries throughout the state.

A REPORT TO THE PUBLIC ON THE TELEPHONE STRIKE

Southern Bell deeply appreciates the efforts made by the Governors to settle the telephone strike.

We regret that we were not able to convince those who represented the Union that the Company's proposal for increased wages, expanded arbitration, and other contract improvements is fair and liberal. It protects the interests of the public, the employees and the Company.

We will continue our efforts to convince Union leaders of its benefits and advantages. We hope we will be successful.

In the meantime, telephone service continues good. Over 30,000 telephone men and women are on the job. More are returning every day.

We are handling our normal volume of long distance calls. Local service is 85 percent dial-operated, and in the other cities and towns where operators handle the calls, the service is generally normal. Over the South, the messages are going through.

This would not be possible without the great encouragement and cooperation given us by telephone users everywhere, and by the skill and spirit of telephone folks on the job. To both groups go our warmest thanks.

industry of our state.

EDUCATION: "I favor for all our children the strongest and best public school system that we are able to give. Adequate buildings and equipment, competent administrators and capable teachers fairly compensated are some of the requisities necessary to attain this end.

"As Governor, I favor continued support of our junior and senior colleges which furnish training and leadership in educational and other fields.

SEGREGATION: "Segregation of the races in our public schools has been a policy of this State almost one hundred years without having been challenged by any party at interest until the recent far reaching decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

"I challenge this decision both legally and morally. It is my conviction that segregation must continue in the public schools and if elected Governor, I pledge all-out effort backed by 29 years' experience in both State and Federal Courts of the land, to maintain segregation. I will be in a better position to keep the matter out of the courts - but should it become necessary to litigate the question in the State or Federal Courts, then my wide experience in both State and Federal Courts would qualify me far better than any other candidate to meet the challenge.

COURTS: "In our Judicial System I shall continue to strive for further improvement in our Court procedure to the end that justice may be done more speedily, efficiently and economically. My past efforts in this worthwhile endeavor are well known.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION: If elected Governor, I would recommend and work for increases in the existing workmen's compensation law, to enable employees, widows and their dependents to live decently.

CHRISTIAN POLICY: As Governor I will pursue a Christian policy of concern for all which is both morally an economically sound. It is my belief that we should work out practical plans to curb Juvenile Delinquency, and provide additional opportunities for our dependent and exceptional children

As Governor, I will favor increasing Old Age Assistance to $55.00 per month, an amount which would receive the maximum Federal support.

Finally, I pledge you that if elected Governor, I shall put forth every effort to furnish all the people of Mississippi the kind and quality of Christian leadership and unselfish service that will make Mississippi a much greater and more prosperous State.

It is my opinion that if we implement action plans - based upon studies already completed by our educators, our economists and the other leaders of our state, we shall in truth develop our human resources to their greatest capacity, and that we can process and market our raw materials for a greater prosperity."

The characters change from place to place, but this little drama goes on all over America night after night: "She came to me at the close of day when lamps were being lit and feeling of peace lay over the world. With cool fingers she caressed my forehead. Gently she took from me the volume of simple heartfelt verses which I had been reading. Softly, her warm lips close to my ear, she whispered: "I'll wash and you dry" . . . Usually women do not have much muscle. They really don't need it because they have more and better ways to get people to do the things they desire than to use physical force. Ada knows the whistling tea kettle makes me nervous, so when she thinks its about time for me to come in the kitchen for breakfast every morning she will get that little kettle boiling and whistling (we use the boiling water for instant coffee) and sure enough here I come running to stop the shrieking noise which would wistle on and on untill I do get there and make the coffee. Hey, Joe whats your pet gripe about the house work for men? The only state in which a man is required to hold two jobs is the state of matrimony, and guess where there's never any overtime pay but all the work IS overtime.

Pandora was warned not to open the box which had been given her. But she couldn't restrain her curiosity so she lifted the top and peeped in. Out flew a number of plagues of man, such as rheumatism, gout and fever for his body, and spite, jealousy and revenge for his mind.

Everything had escaped except hope. This is, according to Greek mythology, and probably accounts for the saying that when everything else is lost, we still have hope. I have before me a letter recently written by Eddie Rickenbacker, great airline executive, in which he lists some of the things he believes in. "I believe in prayer" Eddie writes, "As it has been the greatest source of power in my life. I pray for my friends, my family, my country, and its leaders. Through prayer, I have received guidance that has helped me to solve most of my major problems. Prayer has saved my life more times than I can recall."

We think this very great man certainly recalls those days he spent lying half starved in an open boat some where in a far corner of the big Pacific Ocean, when about all he had to pin his HOPE to was faith in God and that His will would be done. Some times it takes some dire circumsances some awful force that pushes a person down in the ground before he will accept Faith, Hope and Charity. However Eddie Rickenbacker was a man of religion before his experience as a cast-a-way in that big rolling sea, and he gives all the credit for his rescue to prayer. H O P E - Ah, yes, we hold fast to it because those with out hope has only these hope-less things: "depressed, pessimistic, despairing, without promise, despondent, desperate, forlorn, cheerless."

Fortune: You are always busy, yet never content, and often leave your work in an unfinished state. This is equally true with books, in music, and all things. Electric Skillets

Bake a cake in a frying pan? Why not? One of the many uses electric frying pans offer is that of baking. Without extra water or shortening a cake can be baked with the same automatically controlled heat as in the oven of an electric range. The top will not be perfectly, but when the cake is turned out, the bottom will be browned. This makes an excellent short cake or quick dessert when topped with ice cream and a sauce or fruit and whipped cream.

Although the preheat time is very short, many electric skillets have an indicator light which goes out when the temperature has been reached.

When baking a cake in a square-shaped skillet or one which is too large in diameter a cake pan is used. Place a small rack or trivet in the electric frying pan to raise the cake pan ½ inch from the bottom of the skillet. No water is needed. Then preheat to the suggested temperature for baking. On many of the skillets the temperature is measured in degrees, ranging from 200F. - 420F.; or one or two, however, it is measured in numbers from 1 to 7. They are all thermostatically controlled. I f the skillet is the desired cake size, line the skillet with three layers of waxed paper. Then cut three strips wide enough to cover the sides of the skillet, trimming the edges so that the lid will fit securely. Upside-down cakes may be baked directly in the skillet or in a pan inside the skillet.

Cakes are not the limit of the baking possibilities. Cheese Souffles, fondues, cobblers, dumplings, spoon bread are among the many appetizing dishes which can be baked in this versatile portable appliance.

Bake one or more potatoes without heating up your oven. Heat fresh or frozen rolls in covered skillet.

In damp weather, soggy crackers, cereals, potato chips, can be made crisp again by heating in a covered skillet.

Make delicious salted and glazed nuts.

Since portable electric skillets are heat-resistant and have mar-proof legs they may be plugged into any outlet and used in any room. This might suggest popcorn by the TV hamburgers on the sunporch or patio or spaghetti cooked and kept warm at the table. Stews, pot-roast dinners, steamed or sauteed vegetables are excellent when cooked in the electric skillet.

Electric skillets may be purchased from any dealer of electric merchandise. Although the Mississippi Power and Light Company does not sell appliances, you may contact your local office if you wish to try out an electric skillet.

that the food doesn't give its full share to the well-being of your family.

Basic seven food guides are available in your home agent's office just for the asking. They are prepared to help you plan your meals. If you use the guide you will find i teasier to make out advance shopping lists to include all the foods needed for good health, as well as list of other foods that you may substitute if some on the first list aren't available or cost too much.

Plan a time to shop so you can do an efficient job of buying. Do your buying at a time when fresh supplies of food are available. Fill your market basket with foods that are in season, abundant, and so, low in price.

Some of the recommended buying practices are: Make fewer shopping trips, buy the protective foods like milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables first, buy by weight, learn to know the quality of food needed for different uses and make cost per serving comparisons between like kinds of fresh frozen and canned foods. Mazing cash payments helps to prevent overspending and avoids payment of delivery charges.

Efficient planning and skillful buying will pay off unless you store the food carefully at home. Use correct storage methods for meat, canned foods, fruits and vegetables, eggs and dairy products to avoid waste.

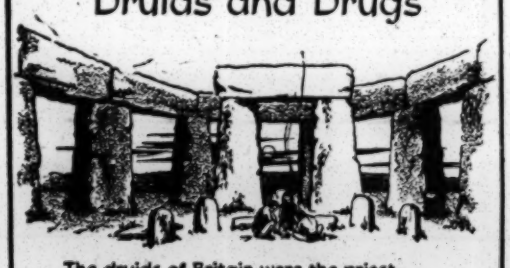
Druids and Drugs



The druids of Britain were the priest-physicians of the ancient Irish civilization. They tended the sick and wounded with preparations from their bags of salves and herbs. The mistletoe, a parasitic plant of the oak, was known to the druids as the "all-healer" and was the object of superstitious veneration.

There is no one "all-healer." Your physician studies each individual case and prescribes the remedy indicated. The family physician is the one to consult when you feel "out of sorts." Bring your prescriptions to us to be filled.

Yes, indeed...biscuits go like hot cakes when you pour on plenty of delicious dark Karo... there's nothing like it for good eating. Satisfyin' flavor. So rich it stands right up on top of biscuits (keeps 'em light and fluffy). Keep Karo on your table morning, noon and night ...it tops anything!

Faith and Action

Lesson for May 1, 1955

THE church is not the state and the state is not the church. When either one tries to be the other, or to run the other, there is trouble. Church and state are separate; that is a deep-rooted American principle. But that does not mean that a wall should be run up between the state and religion. That does not mean that the state can afford to be indifferent to religion. You are not I and I are not you, but that is

Dr. Foreman

Executive's Religion

Most American churches, including those denominations both large and small sponsor this column, believe that the stage is right not to help the church by direct "establishment" of any church by public law. No Presbyterian, Methodist or Baptist, for instance, and still less a Quaker or a Pentecostal Christian wants his own church given government support by money grants or any other way. Nevertheless, Christians of every label rejoice when a President or other leader professes his faith openly. We all feel, quite rightly, that we shall be better off when our leaders in state and society are genuinely religious men and women. There is an interesting and instructive illustration of this in the Bible. In the course of the history of Judah we come on the administration of a king named Jehoshaphat. He was a good king and he left his country far better than he found it. Now we hear very little about this king's beliefs. He was no more nor less orthodox than kings before or after him.

He was not a better king because he could pass a better examination in theology. He was better because he put his beliefs into action. A creed that can't get light and air and exercise turns sour, and it sours those who hold it.

Beginning on the Ground Floor

Now many acts of a high executive may not seem to be religious or to have anything to do with religion, and yet they may affect religion strongly. For example, there was Jehoshaphat, a king whose first recorded act was one for the public defense. He fortified his border garrisons and he developed a well-organized and well-equipped army. Religion cannot be upheld on the points of bayonets, that is all true; but the fact remains that in the time of Jehoshaphat there was real danger from invasion, and a successful invasion meant that the true religion would have to go underground. Korean Christians know this today perhaps better than anybody. What South Korean Christians wants the U. N. forces to go home? So even so seemingly non-religious a business as reorganizing an army for greater effectiveness may have notable religious effects too.

Getting the Message to the People

Before Billy Graham visited Denmark, it was said, the preachers in that country, who were men of high education, preached so far over the heads of the people that churches had dismally small congregations. It is the people's business to rise to our level, said the preachers, not for us to sink to theirs. Then Billy Graham came along and showed what would happen if preachers really got down where the people are. Since that time, it is reported, the ministers have taken the hint and the churches are getting more people interested. You can put religion in a beautiful ivory tower, or gothic cathedral for that matter, and people may admire it but that's all. Religion has got to be put within reach of the people. King Jehoshaphat did this by putting his "teaching priests" on the road, taking the Law of God to the people, the Law which had so much to say about everyday living. In our country, on the contrary, though the one place where you can reach all the people is in the public schools and state colleges, the law generally permits any subject at all to be taught—except the Bible, which cannot even be legally read aloud!
